RE: Telephone Conversation of June 1, 1990 with Milo Bosshardt, Redmond Clay & Salt, M/039/002, San Pete County, Utah

On June 1, 1990 Mr. Milo Bosshardt returned my call regarding the progress status of the maps, etc., for the Redmond Clay & Salt Mine Notice of Intent.

Milo indicated that he now had a map of the 100 acre area which included the mine, but the other maps had not yet been completed. He informed me that a development company was now interested in leasing the lands associated with the mine operation and mineralized zone, for the purpose of creating a tourist attraction. The unique nature of the mineralization and the mine itself, were to be the main attraction for tourists. At this time no formal agreement had been made, but negotiations were proceeding. Redmond Development Company is the party interested in leasing the property. Milo informed me that if the agreement was finalized, the mining activity would continue for some time, along with, and as part of the tourist development. He also said that reclaiming the mine site would destroy this proposed post mining land use.

I informed Milo that I would discuss this new issue of the development company and tourist attraction with Wayne and Holland as well as the original issue of a Large Mine NOI. I told Milo that I would contact him with my findings.
